MEJIA JEWELRY

Mejia Fine Jewelry, by Elise Thompson, is thrilled to participate in the exhibition "Bonded: Jewelry Gold Collective" and be a part of the panel discussion "The Power of Community: A Discussion" on 2021 from 4:00 pm – 5:30 pm. Community plays a big role in Elise's inspirations and development during our panel chat.

Mejia Jewelry embodies a playful but refined aesthetic that pay tribute to stories of her life as well clients through creating a custom jewel just for them or re-working their old jewelry into something creates future heirlooms using precious metals, diamonds, and colored gemstones and with that relationship between the jewel and the wearer.

Mejia [may-ah] is a Greek word meaning wear it in good health, and the jewelry she creates is infused with health and happiness and most importantly joy. Elise wants the jewel to bring joy to your life and make you happy and joyful when wearing a piece of Mejia Jewelry.

An overwhelming inspiration for Mejia Jewelry has always been the beach and sea. Growing up near the water there was always a prevalent intuitive connection to the sea. As an endless shell and shoreline bits collector, textures and motifs in Mejia's designs take a nod from this salty landscape. Elise also grew up in a household where handcraft was ever present whether watching her grandmother sew couture dresses or making handmade doll clothes for her barbies, these experiences are all woven together and translated into her jewelry through jewelry.

Mejia jewelry is a global brand that has garnered domestic and international recognition. Industry insiders continue to recognize Mejia Jewelry with features in Forbes, JCK Magazine, In Store Magazine, and Robb Report Singapore, and Diamonds in the Library.
